Two Big Extra Cash Awards Offered to Those Desiring to Get Into Herald Race Quickly

have at the same time made your chances of winning one of the grand awards that much more certain. Persons from all parts of Washington and its environs, as well as the outlying sections throughout this part of the country, are invited to join the Salesmanship Club. All have the same chance to win the home or one of the six latest model 1920 automobiles.

There are sixty-three awards in all and in any event candidates are sure to receive pay for whatever effort they put forth, as a cash commission of 10 per cent will be paid to every active nonprize winner. This makes it certain that every competitor will receive compensation.

Short Campaign.
The Salesmanship Club race is no long drawn-out affair. It is a short competition and those who get their names in the first list will have a decided advantage over those who delay their efforts until later. Many entries are being received daily. Already those who have started in the race are more than enthusiastic over the opportunity presented to win such unusual reward for spare-time effort.

In a few days a list of Salesmanship Club members will be published, as if you are considering joining the club, you should not delay longer. Send in your name on the entry blank now and start an active campaign without delay. See that your name is included among those published in the first list. It will let your friends know you are in the race and will help you in your candidacy. On another page of the Herald today there will be found a Salesmanship Club entry blank. It will take but a few moments to fill it out and forward it to the sales manager. This simple act may place you in the key to the $6,000 home or it may be a self-starter which will lead to your winning a big automobile and a handsome sum in cash.

The filling out of the entry blank means that you are started with 5,000 credits. It does not commit you to spend any more time than you can spare for the interesting work involved. You are free to do as you please. Of course, the more you do, the better award you should win.

Candidates are not limited to any district or section, in which to work. They may obtain subscriptions anywhere. The arrangement of districts is only for the distribution of the smaller awards offered to those who compete as members of the Salesmanship Club—they do not affect in any way the winning of the grand awards.

Easy to Obtain Credits.
Many people can make a very effective campaign and still devote very little time to the work, because they have a large circle of friends who will gladly assist them. Many will make good use of the telephone in advising their friends of their candidacy and in asking for their support. One spare day, well spent, will work wonders.

The persons who are most enterprising and persistent, naturally will have an advantage over those who do not show enthusiasm, but the Salesmanship Club offers so many awards to satisfy satisfactory returns for the time spent, that it is hard to imagine why any one should hesitate in joining. This is especially true when one stops to consider that there will be no losers in this campaign. Every active worker will be rewarded for his or her effort, either by an award or a cash commission.

The awards are to be made according to the subscription credits obtained by those competing. Credits are issued on all subscriptions in accordance with the regular published schedule.

Every one who is interested in the Herald's big offer should write, telephone, or call at the Salesmanship Department for receipt books and full information. The club headquarters are located at 423 Eleventh street, northwest, telephone number is Main 2889. The office is open every evening until 9 o'clock. You are invited to call at your earliest convenience.

110TH VETS HOLD REUNION

District Artillery Unit Beats Baltimore Men at Baseball.

Washington members of the 110th Field Artillery are planning a reunion in Washington next autumn of the first battalion, "the District's Own," it was announced by Lieut. Dudley Browne last night on his return from Pikeville, Md., where a reunion of the entire regiment was held yesterday.

250 ARE CONFIRMED BY PAPAL DELEGATE

Over 250 children of the Church of the Holy Rosary, Italian, were confirmed yesterday afternoon by Archbishop John Bonzano of Mill-Tine, Papal Delegate to the United States.

The Archbishop was assisted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. Cassio, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Filippo Bernardini, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Cornelius P. Thomas, and the Rev. Fr. Michael De Carlo. Attending were members of Catholic societies and parents of the children.

Following the confirmation an important reception was held by the Excellency the Papal Delegate. Music was furnished by the Church Boys' Band.

1,500,000 TONS SUGAR MISSING

J. H. Post, Refiner, Declares Large Part of Supply Disappeared.

New York, May 23.—Herbert Hoover will be the principal witness tomorrow before the Lusk legislative committee investigating the high cost of living and particularly causes for high prices of sugar in the United States.

Dealers, refiners and the public were puzzled today by the statement of James H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining Company, who declared that more than 1,500,000 tons of sugar from last year's crop was "unaccounted for."

"Is there any way to discover the whereabouts of this sugar?" Post was asked.

"You can check the stock of the various refineries," he replied, "but you cannot find out the stock in the hands of grocers and manufacturers. This country consumes about 4,500,000 tons of sugar a year, so you see an enormous quantity must be in the country either in the process of being shipped or in grocers' or in manufacturers' hands."

Sermons Heard in Washington Churches Yesterday

Dr. Clovis G. Chappell Says Optimism, Cheerfulness And Courage Are Fundamental Principles.

In his sermon yesterday on the subject, "The Man Who Encouraged Himself," Dr. Clovis G. Chappell, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, declared that optimism and cheerfulness and courage are among the fundamental principles of Christian living, and that it is as important for a man to possess these qualities as for him to be a Christian in any other respect. He declared in effect that these are Christian virtues, and that there is doubt of the reality of the experience of the Christian who does not possess them.

Courage, Dr. Chappell said, is one of the most needed virtues of the times. His courage had to do with the Psalmist, David, who was optimistic and "encouraged himself in the Lord," when everything seemed to be against him. He denounced the false courage, the false optimism, which he said was sometimes based on a disbelief in plain facts—the courage which attacks the giant in the pathway by arguing that there is no giant, rather than the courage which relies on the Lord to assist in meeting and conquering the real giant.

"It doesn't matter what your job may be," said Dr. Chappell, "you know that when you lose heart in it, you may as well give it up. David encouraged himself in the Lord when he was beset with difficulties that would have taken the heart out of him except for this source of encouragement, and every Christian can do the same thing today. And it is his duty to do so."

Printers Stop Press Papers.
Peoria, Ill., May 23.—Peoria was without a local Sunday newspaper today as a result of the strike of printers of the three dailies here. Employees of the Star struck when refused an increase in wages to $1.50 an hour. Efforts to print the Star in other plants caused the general walkout.

Paul Is Pictured as True Soldier of Christ by the Rev. Talbot at Church of Covenant.

Rev. H. D. Talbot, who occupied the pulpit at the Church of the Covenant yesterday morning in the abode of the torch of a sublime Word, based his sermon on Phil. 1:21 "For Me to Live Is Christ; To Die Is Gain."

He said in part: "Today, of all ages, is a time of effort for an equal opportunity for making ideals into practicalities. We have always had ideals, for the essential fundamentals of human nature are not changed. Ideals to be practicable must be founded upon fundamental truths."

"Picture Paul, aged, in prison, harassed, persecuted, with faith sorely tried; but he was a true soldier of Christ, a Christian in every sense of the word. With Nero on the throne, in a measure his day was like our day, a troublesome time, but he was undismayed. In his letter to the Philippians he holds aloft the torch of a sublime faith, an unchallenged confidence, an unquenchable optimism."

COTHRON AND WIFE FACE MURDER CHARGE
(Special to The Washington Herald.)
Rockville, Md., May 23.—Clarence Cothron and his wife, Grace Cothron, will face the Circuit Court here tomorrow on an indictment charging them with the murder of Homer Jones, colored chauffeur, of Baltimore, near Burtonsville, in June of last year.

An order was issued by Judge Edward C. Peter Saturday directing the sheriff of the Maryland penitentiary to produce them in court at 9 o'clock.

Both are serving time in the State prison. Cothron was convicted of the murder of John T. Weedon, while Mrs. Cothron is serving a four-year term for abducting a 9-year-old girl entrusted to her care.

CARS COLLIDE CAUSING INJURIES TO SCORES
New York, May 23.—Scores of passengers were injured, some critically, when two trolley cars in Brooklyn collided. Brakes on one of the cars failed to work at a street intersection.

The trolley plowed into traffic on the cross street, crashing into two automobiles and knocking the second car over.

"To Help Others, We Must Come With Insight and Perception," Says Rev. Muir in Sermon.

Post convention thoughts were the theme of Rev. J. J. Muir's sermon at the Temple Baptist Church yesterday morning.

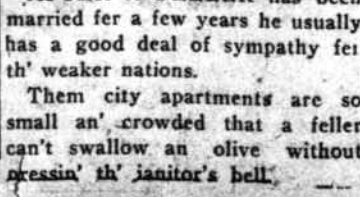

"We must come down from the heights of the convention to the comparative lowland of everyday life, just as Christ and his disciples descended from the Mount of Transfiguration."

"But we have had an ethereal vision, our hearts have been lifted up, and we must not lose sight of the splendid aims and ideals vouchsafed us during the convention. We must not let the Master say to us, 'Because of your unbelief.' He must rebuke us for lack of faith."

"We are come to the multitude and we must have insight and perception. We must be able to see in their faces their peculiar needs and problems that we may minister to them. First, there is the controversialist, always in dispute, whose respect for the law is against Christianity. Then come the distressed and heart-broken, burdened with the weight of many sorrows, battling against conditions, groaning under injustice. Again we have those who have battled and lost, humiliated over their failure."

"These and many other types are in the multitude that faces us today, and we must carry our message to them bravely and resolutely. We must consider them an opportunity for definite service. The time has passed when any Christian may say, 'What is there for me to do?'"

Take It from Uncle Eph

Dr. Henry Allen Tupper Tells of Curse of Pessimism and Blessing of Optimism in Lecture.

In his seventh lecture-sermon on "Making the Most of Myself," Dr. Henry Allen Tupper, of the First Baptist Church, last night spoke of the curse of pessimism and the blessing of optimism.

"The writer of Ecclesiastes," he said, "who wrote 'Vanity of vanities, all is vanity,' and the Apostle Paul, who wrote 'Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; poor, yet making many rich; being nothing, yet possessing all things,' all of these things are of these contrary mental qualities."

"First, we have the one who although having all things, possessed nothing. Life is a life that revolved in the circumference of self, seeking happiness only for its own sake, he was surfeited by material things yet hungered after spiritual things."

"Second, we have the immeasurable wealth of one who really possessed nothing in a material sense. In a spiritual way, however, he was rich beyond the dreams of avarice, for he had a recognition of divine power and partnership, and the inspiration of an unselfish motive and noble ideal. He had the knowledge that real life is the inner, not the outer existence, that duties are ours, and results God's. To him were given in unstinted measure the majestic and magnetic attractions of the blessed life to come. Life was to him a glorious opportunity and a sacred responsibility."

COMIC OPERA TO AID SALVATIONIST DRIVE

Substantial addition to the Salvation Army home service fund is expected from the six benefit performances of "The Mikado," and "H. M. S. Pinafore," which will be given at the Metropolitan Opera House, June 5 by the People's National Opera Society. Tickets will be placed on sale today under the direction of William B. Westlake, director of the Salvation Army campaign, from his headquarters in the New Willard Hotel.

Final touches are being put on the production by Rollin Bond, director of the opera society, at daily rehearsals. A 30-piece orchestra and a chorus of seventy-five will support the principals, among whom are numbered singers who have been prominent in Washington musical circles for years.

Paris Women Give Toy Dogs Clothes; Neglect Own Legs

Paris, May 23.—Startling innovations in the parol line made their appearance at the Longchamps race course today. The wearers in each case, were accompanied by "toy dogs" clad in little jackets hand-painted in the same colors as the parolais.

Silk stockings being still practically unobtainable because of the "de luxe" importation ban. Many fashionable women were seen in suede "kissack" boots reaching half way to the knee, the rest of the leg being bare.

An ideal sunshine afternoon brought out thousands to the race track and the mannikin parade was particularly gorgeous. "Shadow dresses," "beige and white" and "bare legs predominated."

MAY NEGLECT POSTAL CLERKS

Congress May Adjourn Without Readjusting Salary Scale of Employees.

By ROBERT T. BARRY.
There are indications that Congress will depart from Washington early in June without having enacted legislation to readjust salaries of postal employees in such a way as to check further impairment of the mail service of the nation. Some of the members who have posed as the greatest friends of the clerks and carriers now are arguing that the report of the salaries reclassification commission cannot be made by June 1. They are making no promises whatever about passing the necessary legislation.

Confronted by a choice between continued degradation of the postal service and collapse of the political chatter about economy, many members are inclined to take the credit for economy and let the cash for the mail service go. Some leaders are averse to adding the necessary millions for pay increases to their statements of appropriations when they go to the people this summer.

Pressure by business interests and the activities of some members of the salaries commission for prompt action are having an effect. The commission is expected to agree. This week on the major points in its report. It will suggest immediate consideration of a bill embodying the proposed salary increases, and a fight will be made to have it passed before the convention recess. Sentiment for the increases is regarded as being so overwhelming as to insure prompt passage if the leaders permit the bill to reach the floor. (Public Ledger Service.)

FOREST SAVING WEEK IS HERE

Forestry Association Tells Camps of $30,000,000 Annual Loss in Fires.

National Forest Protection Week opened yesterday. Many governors have called attention to the need of forest conservation, asking cooperation of campers in protecting the trees of the country.

The American Forestry Association has issued a statement warning that lost by forest fires total $30,000,000 annually.

"The area burned each year by these fires," the statement says, "totals ten times the size of the devastated region of France."

Besides summarizing the lumber situation, the statement also gives advice to those contemplating camping.

D. C. WOMEN'S LEGION ADOPTS FIRST AID

The American Women's Legion announced yesterday the adoption of first aid as one of the important policies of the legion. Classes will be established and members of the legion will receive free first aid instruction in all its phases.

This movement has the approval of both national and divisional heads of the Red Cross, and of Dr. Sidney E. Cousins, director of first aid for the District of Columbia.

A legion life-saving corps is to be formed, and all members who pass the different tests held will be presented with the life-saving insignia of the Red Cross.
